6. Player Monitoring & Risk Assessment

Player activity data is monitored on an ongoing basis using a range of daily and weekly alert reports based on financial and behavioral indicators including escalations from player-facing departments such as Customer Support and VIP department. Additionally, the monitoring system has another layer of variables looking at customers demographics and activity which will return a risk score that is translated into an indicative “RG risk category”. The data alerts support the Responsible Gambling team to recognize potential risky behaviors and markers of harm including, but not limited to, large or increasing deposits, long sessions spent gambling, declined deposit methods, large wagering volumes, under 25 years of age and the usage of RG tools. While the player-facing departments will recognize concerning correspondence during customer interaction and escalate these to the RG department for review.

When a player has been identified as at risk of gambling related harm, a responsible gambling review is completed which involves a wholistic assessment including, but not limited to, player activity, personal situation, previous gambling history, interactions and any information obtained through the course of the business relationship. Based on the information obtained and assessed during the player review, a risk assessment will be completed, and a risk level applied to the player. The risk level applied to players is used to guide an appropriate level of player interactions and harm reduction actions in a timely and professional manner. Depending on the level of concern and risk, a step approach is used by setting guardrails on the customer’s account, such as enforcing a deposit limit, restricting the account to force an interaction or enforcing an exclusion on the player’s account. A summary of player risk levels and actions is provided in Table 1 below.

Customers can access the Self-banning options by either contacting our support for assistance or within the Responsible Gaming section in 'My Account'.

The customer can choose to either temporarily or permanently self-exclude their account while the short break allows shorter periods starting from 24 hours up to 3 months.

A temporary Self-exclusion and Short break period cannot be revoked early; however, a Self-exclusion can be extended by any of the Self-exclusion time periods offered, by contacting Pinnacles CSD.

During the time of the self-exclusion and short break, the customer cannot log in and wager on any betting vertical, make any deposits and will not receive any marketing from Pinnacle. Once the temporary Self-exclusion period has ended, the customer can contact Pinnacle's CSD to request access to the account again while the Short break will reactivate automatically once the time frame chosen has lapsed. If indications of an RG concern are found, the request to reactivate from Self-exclusion will first be evaluated by the RG department before being approved or declined.

9.1.1 Remaining account balance

If a customer has a remaining account balance during a definite self-exclusion period or a short break, the funds can be manually withdrawn by contacting customer support.

In cases where a customer has selected a permanent self-exclusion, any remaining balance will be automatically withdrawn without the need to contact support.

9.1.2 Reactivation from self-exclusion

A customer needs to actively request to re-open a self-excluded account by contacting customer support. If the period chosen is definite, the request for reactivation can only be done after the time set has lapsed. If period chosen is permanent, the reactivation request will be denied permanently. If customers were restricted proactively by the operator or if the operator excluded the account on customers' behalf due to specific RG concerns, the request is escalated to the RG team for further evaluation and review prior to account reactivation being considered.

The RG team will review customers account and ask additional questions to make sure the customer is fit to return to gambling again. If the customers reply to the questions given by the RG team is not sufficient, the self- exclusion will not be revoked, and account will remain excluded indefinitely.

9.2 Time and Monetary limits

The customer can set or change their Deposit and Session limit at any time by either logging in to their account and set them within the Responsible Gaming section in 'My Account' or contacting Pinnacles Customer support to request an amount/number of hours as well as a daily, weekly, or monthly recurring period, while the Risk limit can be set or changed by contacting Pinnacles Customer support. Revocation or any increase is subject to a 24-hour cooling off period and a decrease in the limit is immediate as soon as a request is received by the customer support team. If a customer changes their mind during the cooling-off period, they can contact Pinnacles Customer support to cancel their request. Any limit set will be set across all gaming verticals. How these limits are calculated is explained within Pinnacles Responsible Gaming Policy on site where the customer has easy access to the information.
