

INTRODUCTION

My diverse international background has inspired me to pursue a career in International Law. Originally from Colombia and having grown up in Curacao, I completed a double degree in International and European Law and Spanish Law from two prestigious institutions: Maastricht University and the Autonomous University of Madrid.

This academic journey developed my research skills through the completion of two theses. The first, titled 'Forced Labor in the Fast Fashion Industry: Assessing the UFLPA's Implementation of UNGP Principles to Combat Forced Labor,' focused on transparency in supply chains regarding forced labor in the fast fashion industry and earned a grade of 8.5. The second thesis, 'Evolution of the Right of International Transfer of the Registered Office in European Union Law,' explored the right of company seat transfer within the European Union, for which I received a grade of 7. These experiences have deepened my interest in private and corporate law.

Additionally, my experience as a paralegal at the Legal Clinic of the Autonomous University of Madrid has further solidified my commitment to a career in law, providing me with practical insights and hands-on experience in legal practice.
